Doubtfire, vice-president; Herbert Plimpton, treasurer, and Fred C. St. George, secretary.

Deputy Commissioner Welton has instructed advertising firms not to deface electric light poles, under pain of prosecution. He recently ordered the companies to paint their poles, and they have since complained that the painters had scarcely finished with a pole before it was covered with signs. The advertising firms generally have promised to comply with the order, but it is said their men keep on plastering the poles just the same. It is likely that proceedings will be taken to enforce the law.

Bay Twenty-second-st., Bath Beach, gave a private musical and luncheon for a few of her friends on Wednesday at her home. Miss Hochs, though only nineteen years old, has just returned from a trip to Europe, where she has been studying the violin in Paris. After a two years' course of study at the Boston Conservatory, Miss Hochs will appear in public.

The quiet Bedford section was startled on Friday by the sight of a large company of people slowly filing up Halsey-st., one by one, each laden with a box or bundle. The occasion was a birthday surprise for Mrs. S. A. Klinner, of No. 24 Halsey-st. She is one of the oldest members of an army of Manhattan, and her sisters and brothers, with their families, gathered from Greenwich, Port Chester, Woodlawn, Tremont and Mott Haven. As there are several musicians among the number, the impromptu entertainment which occupied the evening delighted all present.
